

THE FINAL BOW

— O L T Q U I Z —

A 6 0 2

A yellow ribbon bow is centered in the background against a dark blue field. The bow is made of a textured fabric and is tied in a classic bow shape. A white, cloud-like speech bubble is superimposed over the center of the bow, containing the text.

"People come and people go.....
But you guys can never be replaced!!!
So go seniors, live your best lives,
cause' you guys are the best!"

Q1

As Chinese immigrants moved into the United States, Chinese cuisine has become increasingly popular in America, and many dishes have been adapted to suit local tastes.

One theory about the origins of a popular dish suggests that it was developed in Chinese-American restaurants in the 20th century. The dish likely evolved from traditional rice recipes, with the addition of chicken and a specific cooking process. This process involves cooking rice certain number of times, each time adding different ingredients and flavors to enhance the taste and texture.

Thus, the dish derives its name from the cooking process and a number of times it's prepared. Which dish?

Q5

The phrase "X and Y" has its roots in ancient times as Y were a valuable commodity, prized for their flavor, fragrance, and medicinal properties. The Y trade was dominated by Arab merchants who travelled over long distances. To preserve the Y during transport, the Arab merchants would pack them in X, which would help keep the spices fresh and prevent them from spoiling.

Over time, the phrase "X and Y" came to be associated with the exotic flavors and aromas of the East, and it became a popular catchphrase in Europe. In the 19th century, the phrase became a popular slogan for ice cream vendors, who would sell their sweet, creamy treats in markets. They would often add X to their ice cream, creating unique and flavourful combinations that were a hit with customers.

A certain place shares the same phrase & is the only place on campus where BIBLE VERSES are written on the walls.

In the centre is one of BPGC's most famous alumni, Lucky Kaul. Recently, graduated from IIM-A, he's a popular name in the quizzing circuit having won several quizzes including TATA Crucible.

His batch was responsible for the creation of one of the most iconic merchandise designs for any club ever, a design that has since never been tampered with and remains the same.

Legend has it the initial draft had "POUNCERS and BOUNCERS". But to keep it edgy, he changed it to an object (usually associated with quizzing) with an NSFW style.

Q8

- In India, "X" is a surname commonly found among people belonging to the Hindu and Muslim communities. X broadly means "someone who makes garlands or necklaces"
- In the Bengali language, "X" is a caste or community of traditional artisans who work with bamboo and cane. They are known for making baskets, mats, and other household items.
- In the Indonesian language, "X" means "sailor" or "seafarer." A strait derives its name.
- In Arabic, "X" does not have a recognized meaning. However, there are similar-sounding words such as "Malik" which means king or owner, and "Malaikah" which means angels.

Q10

The tiles on campus roofs have a distinct red hue and are known for their durability and ability to withstand heavy rains and winds. They are named after a coastal city of Karnataka that they originated in.

In late 16th century when the Portuguese colonized the region, they brought with them a style of clay tile roofing that was commonly used in their native country. However, these imported tiles were not well suited to the local climate and terrain. To address this issue, local craftsmen began experimenting with different types of clay and firing techniques to create a more durable and weather-resistant tile. They used locally sourced clay that was high in iron oxide, which gave the tiles their distinctive red color.

Today, these tiles continue to be a popular roofing material, not just in Karnataka but also in other parts of India and even internationally.
